

Canberra, 13th October 2010

Who has been to a gazillion IT conferences where someone stands up at a pulpit and preaches to the audience? And who has been disappointed when, at the end, there's time for two or three questions and you really don't get to take something of substance away from the session?

If this is you, then this un-conference might just hold the answer. These events have no agenda - rather we as attendees set the agenda.

Once you've attended one un-conference, you'll be hooked for life!

More on un-conferences can be found here - <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Unconference>

If you're interested in software as a service, platform as a service or any other aspects of Cloud Computing, that coming tidal wave that looks set to change IT forever, then CloudCamp is definitely for you.

CloudCamp is an un-conference where early adopters of Cloud Computing technologies swap ideas. With the rapid change occurring in the industry, we need a place we can meet to share our experiences, challenges and solutions. At CloudCamp, you are encouraged to join in several open discussions as we strive for the advancement of Cloud Computing.

End users, IT professionals and vendors are all encouraged to participate.

On Wednesday, October 13th 1pm – 6pm, CloudCamp is visiting Canberra for the first time. NICTA is generously hosting the event.

So far it has been to Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth as well as about 100 locations all across the world. From Chennai to San Francisco, Madrid to Sao Paulo.

Like all un-conferences there is no set agenda, having said that though there is a bit of a structure.

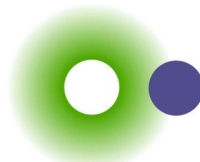

CloudCamp kicks-off with some quick five minute lightning talks followed by the un-panel (un is a theme here) and then we go into attendee decided and directed sessions. Previous camps have looked at Infrastructure, Amazon Web Services, Microsoft Azure, business models and a gazillion other things.

Structure

1:00—1:15pm Registration

1:15—5:15pm Un-conference sessions
(includes afternoon tea)

5:15—6:00pm Networking and refreshments

NICTA

Sponsored by:

Australian e-Government Technology Cluster and NICTA

Details

Date: Wednesday 13th October 2010
Time: 1:00pm-6:00pm (with refreshments)
Cost: No charge to registered participants

Venue: Ground Floor Seminar Room,
Tower A, 7 London Circuit,
Canberra ACT 2601

Register online

<http://cloudcamp-canberra-2010.eventbrite.com/>